

FIRST Type one CONDITIONAL

FIRST CONDITIONAL

- Meaning: We use the first conditional to talk about:
 - ✓ a possible future situation
 - ✓ a real/likely condition
 - ✓ its possible result
- It means: “If this happens, that will probably happen.”

BASIC STRUCTURE

- If + Present Simple, will + base verb (or other modal verbs)
 - If it rains, I will stay at home.
 - If you study hard, you will pass the exam.
 - If she calls, I will answer.
- IMPORTANT RULE
 - ❌ WRONG: If he will come, I will go.
 - ✅ CORRECT: If he comes, I will go.
- ✓ We NEVER use will in the if-clause

DIFFERENT VERB VARIATIONS

- IF-clause can use: Present Simple / Continuous / Perfect
- Present Simple (most common)
 - If you work hard, you will succeed.
 - If he arrives early, we will start.
- Present Continuous (temporary future)
 - If you are studying, I will not disturb you.
 - If you are staying tonight, I will prepare dinner.
- Present Perfect (finished action before future result)
 - If you have finished your homework, you can go out.
 - If she has written the report, I will check it.

MODALS IN MAIN CLAUSE

- Instead of “will”, we can use:
 - may / might → possibility | can → ability / permission
 - must / should → advice / obligation
- If it rains, the match may be cancelled.
- If you hurry, you might catch the bus.
- If you finish early, you can go home.
- If you have ID, you can enter the library.
- If you want to pass, you must study.
- If you feel sick, you should see a doctor.

IF-CLAUSE VARIATIONS

- Present Continuous in IF-clause
- If you are waiting for a bus, you should sit down.
- If you are looking for Tom, he is upstairs.
- If you are staying longer, I will book a room.

IF-CLAUSE VARIATIONS

- Present Perfect in IF-clause
- If you have finished dinner, I will pay.
- If he has completed the task, he can leave.
- If they haven't arrived yet, we will wait.

IF-CLAUSE VARIATIONS

- Modal verbs in IF-clause
- If I can save money, I will travel.
- If you could help me, I would be grateful.
- If you should hide the truth, what will you do?
